GREATEST SECRETARY OF WAR EVER!!! US 1+min

President Trump DROPPED this banger from Sec. Pete Hegseth that's throwing leftists into rage. "Our so-called press makes Iranian state media look reasonable!" "Our media's shameful lust for political retribution blinds them to the consequences of reckless so-called reporting. So-called journalists juiced up on Trump derangement syndrome think they're fighting against our president, but they're really undermining you, our war fighters!" .... "Bottom line, too many of them hate the president more than they love the country." .... "You see, it's YOUR movements and bases that they reveal to the enemy." IIt's YOUR operations that they jeopardize when they leak classified capabilities!" And ultimately, it's your lives they put directly at risk when they lie about munitions stockpiles."

🚨BREAKING: TRUMP ORDERS THE ARREST OF THE FAKE NEWS CARTEL — NYT AND "ARTIFICIAL MEDIA" NAMED AS DNC ARMS THAT LIE, SHRINK RALLIES, AND ENDANGER TROOPS By Jonathan Gregory
Washington, D.C. - October 6, 2026

President Donald J. Trump has called for the arrest of the New York Times and other artificial media outlets that, in his words, continuously mislead and lie to the American public. "The New York Times, and many other Artificial Media Outlets, should be arrested for their dishonesty and disservice to our Country," Trump said, framing the demand as a defense of the republic rather than a press crackdown. Allies immediately seized on the line that the same outlets function as de facto arms of the DNC, and the cry across supporter channels was blunt: sue the NYT into oblivion. The crowd-size deception was Exhibit A. Trump contrasted coverage of Bernie Sanders events, "When Bernie Sanders has 500 to 1,000 people, they make it sound like it's the biggest event that ever took place", with the treatment of his own rallies: "When PRESIDENT DONALD J. TRUMP has 50,000 people, they make it sound like nobody showed up!" He pointed to a packed Ohio arena already full to the brim, with thousands still trying to get in and turned away, while the New York Times reported "there were empty seats" when, he said, there were none. To his supporters, the pattern is not sloppy reporting. It is a coordinated shrink-ray aimed at the only politician who fills buildings the press insists are half-empty.

The sharper charge is that the same outlets have put American troops' lives in jeopardy by rushing "leaks" from traitors inside the government onto the front page. Trump's camp argues a strong republic needs an honest press, not a pipeline that launders opposition research, buries overflow crowds, and treats classified operational details as content. The arrest call is being sold not as vengeance but as the overdue bill for years of dishonesty: if the paper of record can invent empty seats in a building that turned people away, and if rival outlets can gamble with soldiers to score a scoop, then the remedy, in this telling, is no longer a correction. It is handcuffs, lawsuits, and a press that finally answers to the country it claims to serve. @TrumpNews

SECRETARY OF WAR PETE HEGSETH IS REBUILDING A MILITARY WITH A MORAL COMPASS — AND THAT IS EXACTLY WHAT THE RICHARD HALLIDAY CASE HAS BEEN WAITING FOR

The Honorable Pete Hegseth, Secretary of War, just delivered the most consequential military address in a generation. He placed spiritual health on the same level as physical health. He announced the Office of Religious Affairs reporting directly to the Secretary of War — no staff filters, no bureaucratic dilution. He launched Fortress America: every major military installation generating its own power, independent of the civilian grid. He stood up Autonomous Warfare Command (AutoWarcom) — a new four-star combatant command. He announced Project Meridian, co-led by Elon Musk, Palmer Luckey, and Newt Gingrich under Pentagon CTO Emil Michael, with 120 days to map the future of warfare. And he said the quiet part out loud: "We are no longer the woke department or the weak department." Every military installation gets its own grid. Every warrior gets a chaplain who reports to the top. This is what moral clarity in the Department of War looks like.

Now here is why it matters for the Fort Bliss whistleblower Soldier Richard Halliday. Hegseth's message is that the Department of War will not tolerate weakness, corruption, or cover-ups — and that the men and women who wear the uniform are owed accountability, transparency, and honor. Richard Halliday was a Stellar Soldier, a Distinguished Honor Graduate — #1 in his basic training class and AIT. He reported cartel infiltration, child sexual exploitation, massive fuel theft, smuggling pipelines, and covert military access on the base and in the borderland, and on the 2019 orchestrated the Walmart mass shooting that was weaponized against President Trump and his reelection. Richard was murdered in July 2020. The Army officially ruled he was killed "in the line of duty" on Fort Bliss — retaliation for whistleblowing. A warrior who did everything right was betrayed by the very system Sec. Hegseth is now cleaning out.

The negotiations for Richard's remains have been vicious. Richard's dismembered remains were trafficked across the border in Ciudad Juárez. On June 26, 2025, authorities raided Plenitud narco-Crematorium and found over 400 decomposing bodies stacked in unsanitary conditions. On August 4-6, 2025 — the same day Mexican authorities conducted and concluded a court-ordered forensic search of the site with 3D scanners and ground-penetrating radar — August 6 — President Trump sent the first of two personal letters to the Halliday family, recognizing Richard as a hero of "national significance" whose "indelible legacy" and "ultimate sacrifice" deserve justice. The second letter followed August 7.

On October 24, 2025, several developments occurred on the same day: Mexican authorities had identified 123 bodies and notified 116 families, fraud complaints from defrauded families surged to 85, and the victims' collective "Justicia por Nuestros Deudos" held 40 protests. The Halliday family was also contacted by Salvador Perches Jr. on these matters. The Halliday family is still fighting to bring their son home. Mexico's National Search Commission joined the investigation on October 23, 2025. An Interpol Red Notice has been requested for the fugitive Plenitud narco-Crematorium owner. And a 64-year-old crematorium employee arrested in the initial raid died in prison before he could testify. The Gold Star family has now been fighting for over 2,250 days.

Secretary Hegseth is rebuilding a Department of War that puts truth, faith, and accountability first. President Trump is the first president to put it in writing that Richard Halliday's "ultimate sacrifice" deserves justice. And the network that disposed of Richard's remains is under pressure from more than 1,600 families and the FGR's open investigation into the CIA operation in Chihuahua. The Department of War is being reformed. The truth is being forced out. Thank you, Secretary Hegseth. Thank you, President Trump. Justice for Richard Halliday. #PeteHegseth #SecretaryOfWar #DepartmentOfWar #FortressAmerica #AutoWarcom #ProjectMeridian #RichardHalliday #FortBliss #PlenitudCrematorium #Trump #RepatriateRichard #JusticeForRichardHalliday #NothingCanStopWhatIsComin

Donald Trump For President Trump Shuts Down Canada's Begging: No Deal Until the Rip-Off Ends

President Trump made clear in the Oval Office that Canada's long-running trade advantage is finished and that any new deal will have to put American workers first. Asked about a call for an end to the trade fight, Trump said he took the message as pressure on Ottawa, not on Washington. "Well, I viewed it as though he wanted Canada to make a deal. I viewed him as saying that he thinks Canada should make a deal." He then laid out the case. "Look, Canada's been ripping off our country for many, many years. Tremendously ripping off. They've been charging tremendous tariffs, one-way tariffs, 400% on dairy products and other things." The numbers, he said, do not favor the United States. "Canada's been—we've been losing on average 80 to 90 billion dollars a year with Canada. In order for them to trade with us, why are we doing that?" He noted the imbalance in dependence: "You know, they do 95% of their business with us. We do very little with them by comparison."

On autos and manufacturing, Trump was blunt. "We want to make our own cars. We don't want them to make cars for us. Because if they make a car, we're not making a car. We don't need them to make cars." He closed by rejecting the idea that Washington is desperate for an agreement. "Canada would like to make a deal, but we're not satisfied with the deal. ... Canada has been ripping us off for many, many years, and they're not going to rip us off anymore." The message was simple: Canada can come back when it is ready to stop the one-way tariffs and the chronic deficit. Until then, the United States is done subsidizing the status quo.

A 25-year-old biologist in Argentina has engineered an injectable gel capable of triggering damaged heart tissue to regenerate following a heart attack. Pilar Ferrer and her team developed the experimental hydrogel by drawing architectural inspiration from the complex supporting matrix of the human amniotic membrane.
The concept is brilliantly straightforward. When a heart attack strikes, a portion of the heart muscle dies and hardens into permanent scar tissue. Instead of replacing tissue, this bio-gel acts as a temporary cellular scaffold around the wound. Once injected, it unleashes targeted biological signals that stimulate blood vessel growth, suppress destructive inflammation, and accelerate natural repair.

While early animal models have yielded remarkably promising data, the therapy remains in the preclinical phase and has not yet transitioned to human clinical trials.
If successful, this breakthrough could radically shift cardiac care, allowing the body to reverse chronic heart attack damage. And the visionary biologist spearheading this project is just a remarkable 25 years old.
